

"The Ottawa Spotlight"

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, April 28th.—Hon Ian MacKenzie, Minister of National Defence, goes to London accompanied by the heads of the military, naval and air services, and other senior officers of his department, to Minister of Trade and Commerce is not going at all, and trade experts will be conspicuous by their absence. It all goes to confirm the impression which has been reached from other sources, that Imperial defence will be the main topic of discussion at London.

There appears to be little doubt that the British delegates to the Imperial conference which begins on May 14th will stress certain considerations. For instance, that Britain is spending a billion dollars a year on defence, and a good deal of it is in defence of the Commonwealth. That, as a result, the British taxpayer is being lured under the yoke of taxation. That Canada is the fourth largest importer of goods in the world, and has a tremendous stake in keeping open the shipping channels of the world. That if Canada foresees the possibility of being the Atlantic, it is largely so because of the British fleet. That if an Imperial fleet is to be created for the Pacific, of similar proportions to the Atlantic fleet (and this suggestion is being seriously considered) it will have as one of its main objects the protection of the merchant shipping of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and India.

Sounded Out On Defence
The British delegates probably won't use the word "sponge" to describe Canada's attitude on defence, although certain outspoken parliamentarians at Ottawa did, last session. But in a polite way MacKenzie King and his colleagues will probably acknowledge if they feel disposed to cooperate with the British authorities in strengthening, say, the Pacific defences of the Commonwealth.

The Canadian delegates will therefore be placed in a rather delicate position. The representatives of the Canadian people assembled at Ottawa last session made it pretty clear that they were not keen about going in for armaments. They availed the $200,000,000 program with some difficulty, after the explanation that it really wasn't an increase in armaments at all, that what was wanted was solely the restoration and repair of Canada's existing war machine, which has been allowed to run down.

Mr MacKenzie King will be able to say to the British, with some justification, that it is all very well to talk about increases of armaments at London, but that the last word is with the Canadian people in Parliament assembled, and that if they won't increase it, it cannot be done.

What Is On The Cards
It is not difficult, perhaps, to see in advance what is going to be done at the Imperial Conference. The British will try to get the Dominions to go in for enlarged defences; the Dominions will plead that it is politically very difficult. A compromise will be reached, and Hon. Ian MacKenzie will come back to Canada with a naval program of half a dozen fast cruisers, or something of the kind, to be built at once to aid the defences of the Pacific.

The Canadian public will be carefully prepared for this program, which is the next session of parliament—while this, might, of course, be held late this autumn, there will be another naval debate.

The Combines Act
Fred McCreight, registrar for many years of the Combines Investigation Act, has been named commissioner of the rejuvenated body, which has a few new teeth in it, although not so many as the Minister of Labor would have liked. Some work with the force was done in the banking and commerce committee of the Senate in the dying days of last session. There is probably enough left of the Act, however, to enable Fred McCreight and his colleagues to keep a watchful eye on the exploiters who see in Mr. Arthur Meighen a fair mark for their operations. There is nothing illegal about associating with other business men, or the combining of one corporation with others, providing that what is done is not injurious to the public. But the manufacturers or wholesalers "get together" and agreed not to sell socks or aspirin tablets or coal or anything machines or wooden legs, at least not an agreed-upon figure, thus eliminating competition between firms, they would come within the scope of the new Act.

HANDLING ALKALI LAND

Lettichage experimental Station
Some crops will tolerate more alkali than will other crops. Usually plants that are quite drought resistant seem to grow better on alkali soil than do water loving plants under the same conditions. However, the water table is close to the surface, it may be the water, more than the alkali, that prevents normal crop growth. If that is the case, plants that will grow in wet soil (stand wet test) may be best. Sweet clover will grow in quite wet soil and if it passes the seedling stage it has more resistance to alkali than some other plants.

Most plants will tolerate more alkali if they become well established than they will in the germinating or seedling stages. If the salts do not get back up until the plant becomes well established it may be possible to produce a crop. Irrigating little organic matter, such as manure, or applying the application of barnyard manure may help the situation.

GUINPS

For many centuries the custom of the man has included the custom of giving a piece of white linen encircling the face and covering the eyes and breast. About the time of Charles VII of France, says F. J. Rothstein, writing on guinps in the current issue of C.H. Oval, when Christians missionaries expanded extensively, many women wore a head dress that was similar to the guimp worn by women today. Then with the passing of time this style of head covering gave way to secular circles to other forms such as the cap, bonnet and hat. The female religious orders, however, kept to the medieval guimp which is still a compulsory part of the nun's habit. These guimps were first made of linen which required constant washing and starching. Today chemistry has entered the cloister by providing a material with a definite linen finish yet requires no starching and always remains clean, a damp cloth being all that is necessary to restore their freshness.

TAKE NOTICE

There will be a meeting in the Town Hall on Tuesday, May 4th at 7:30 p.m. to reorganize the Strathmore Tennis Club. Everyone interested please be present.

DO YOU KNOW THESE?

Beet root can be made very much like calves head if soaked over night in sour milk.
Fresh peas are more tasty and sweet if several empty water cans are left to remain in the water while cooking.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By H. G. L. Strange
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

The fondest hopes of thousands of Western farming families were ruthlessly dashed in 1926 by the grim miller—black stem rust.
"We must help these suffering people," exclaimed Dr. Butler, head of the Botany Department, University of Manitoba. He jumped on a train and proceeded to the rust infected State of Minnesota to find out what the scientists were doing to combat the enemy.

Dr Butler's recommendations for Canada's action were submitted to Ottawa. Dr. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and Dr. Gussion, Dominion Botanist, were jointly responsible for the quick allocation of $5,000,000 for rust investigation work.

Research Laboratories were soon established at Indian Head and Brandon, then later at the University of Saskatchewan; all under the direction of Professor Fraser.
The same destruction of Western crops by rust, however, occurred again in 1922.

If our world does not possess the requisite courage and cohesion, then we had better abandon our dream of a warless future, and revert to the limited objective of "peace in our time," with such an end in view, we may still turn for comfort to the pre-war system. At its worst, it was less dangerous than a paper facade, which no nation trusts or fears. At present, it seems, nations which should trust are dominated by fear, and those which should fear are emboldened. Propaganda which dwells on the horrors of another war has overrated its mark. Fear achieves nothing. The nations retire to their separate "junk holes," and leave the field clear to the ruthless and determined aggressor. When we are told that another war means the destruction of our civilization, the question still remains whether a civilization so effete as to shrink its obligations to prevent the war, or the successful threat of force is worthy of preservation. The peoples of the world seem at times to resemble a crowd in a small room, in the centre of which one or two lunatics are playing with a bomb. Each one finds excuses for non-interference, and makes futile efforts to keep as far away as possible. Meanwhile the pin, slowly but surely, is being loosened from the bomb.

("The World in 1932," by G. M. Gathorne-Hardy).

Beyond my window in the night is but a drab inglorious street. Yet there the frost and clean starlight As over Warwick woods are sweet.

Under the grey drift of the town The crocus works among the mould As eagerly as those that crown The Warwick spring in flame and gold.

And when the tramway down the hill Across the cobbles moans and rings, There is about my window-sill The tumult of a thousand wings. ("A Town Window" by John Drinkwater)

THE PEOPLE'S LEAGUE

Calgary— Interesting developments may be expected during the coming summer in political Alberta. There will be, for instance, the legislative session, the provincial Liberal convention and probably a general convention of the People's League of Alberta.

While officials have made no definite decision or announcement it is known they have been considering a general convention sometime during early summer to give the entire membership an opportunity to ratify a definite program. The present one was drawn by the provisional executive and is only tentative until approved by all members.

With the idea that a convention may be called, officers state it is essential that groups organize everywhere there is any concentration of memberships in order to secure adequate representation.

Calgary— Southern Alberta executive of the People's League of Alberta today announces the first public meeting of the Calgary branch on Friday, April 30th, commencing at 8.15 p.m. The large meeting held last fall when the League was launched was confined to the general membership and friends.

There will be several well known speakers on the program including H. G. Scott, former city solicitor, magis-

Bile points go into the body, and you feel sour, weak and the world looks queer. Every day at the same time. You need something that works the liver as well as it can. It takes out your Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Bile is good, and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. ### LABOR UNIONS AND THE C.I.O.

Opposition to the C. I. O. and to the organizers that the C. I. O. unions have sent into Canada does not represent opposition to the principle of unionism or labor or to the principle of collective bargaining. Canada's labor union movement has been successful in its objectives in the past without being regarded as public enemies. The fundamental issues at stake are issues.

as the "organization of the union" is to be carried on in Canada by men who have a well written record of lawbreaking and violence in the country from which they come?

Are industrial recovery and the re-employment of Canadians going to be achieved through unnecessary strikes and labor disturbances, organized by an ambitious body that seeks to set up an industrial dictatorship in a few hurried months, a body that has not hesitated, across the border, to break the law, facilitate violence, and aimed blood in pursuit of its objectives?

If the C. I. O. will demonstrate that it is really concerned with accomplishing what is in the long term interests of labor; if it will abandon crime and violence and contempt for the law; if it will break loose from the Communist tactics that have wrapped themselves around the whole Lewis organization with no visible effort at resistance by that organization; if it will logically demonstrate the justice of its case and the bona fides of its intentions, then Canadian labor will be justified in considering whether or not it should affiliate with it.

Financial Post Immediate results are the men returned to work Monday morning with higher wages and better working conditions. Several hundreds of cars not turned out during the two weeks shut down, and the evidence established that Premier Heston's rule is for sane and lawful methods.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

At all Christian Science Churches next Sunday, the subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Eternalizing Punishment." The following is one of the Scriptural quotations contained in the Lesson-Sermon. "And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them, and said, Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven" (Matthew 18:2-3). One of the corrective passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is as follows (page 10): "Do you aim wisdom to be merciful and not to punish? Then 'ye ask angels.' Without punishment, sin would multiply."

Mrs. R. L. Stone and Mrs. A. J. Wine spent several days in Calgary visiting with relatives and friends.

We are sorry to learn that E. Ross of Balmora met with a painful accident last week. A small bone being broken in his foot. We wish for him a speedy recovery.

The Ladies Aid met at the Mason on Thursday afternoon, with Miss Chapman as hostess. Owing to Wednesday's storm the members and visitors were few. Further arrangements for the lunch to be served on the night of Coronation following the program, was the business for the day.

The concert put on by the United Church Choir and assisting artists was very successful, under the direction of Mr. Roberts, choir leader. The one act play under the direction of Mrs. E. Ross went over big. Much talent was exhibited by the young people.

Mr and Mrs Jack Egbert who were recently married are receiving congratulatory visits from their many friends. A

We are pleased to have Bert Ersvell back again after spending a week in the Holy Cross Hospital, Calgary.

CARSELAND

The monthly meeting of the Ladies Aid met at the home of Mrs. N. J. Mutch on Wednesday when officers for 1937 were elected. They are as follows: President, Mrs. K. Hilliard, vice president Mrs. Mutch and Mrs. Mendenby. Mrs. W. Crowe and Mrs. G. B. Field were elected secretary and treasurer respectively. Chairman of lunch committee was Mrs. J. Nelson. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. D. McKinnon.

Monday and Tuesday of this week saw a fine thing being executed in this district. The owners of some 12 tractors turned a live at the home of Mrs. C. Hansen and seeded all the summer fallow on her farm. It is a splendid thing when a community can cooperate in such a way. May the blessing of a fruitful yield crown their efforts.

United Church service in Carseland will be held from now on each Sunday at twelve noon, the evening service on the second Sunday in the month being vibrante. On May 31, Rev. Dr. Powell will be the preacher and a short Mothers' Day programme will be presented.

The monthly Anglican service will be held in the future at 10:30 on the second Sunday each month.
